Culture

Apart from clocks & calendars, there’s another way to register Time/Nous/Whatever’s presence: Culture

(Author’s note: When i wrote that sentence a few weeks ago (edit: 4 weeks), i already had the next 4-5 pages mapped out on Catholicism’s/MSC’s audacious ride to global mind-control. First page Time-travel - this one is Culture - its relationship to Time - then onto THE Church - bang bang bang - page-a-day - explore where it goes from there … which is somewhere up the Daly River - see you in the NT…

But got stuck on one-fucking-word: Culture

It’s central to the MSC story, but what is it? What does it mean? Define your terms …

First there are different levels. You can talk about the Shin Boner Spirit culture at the North Melbourne Football Club - or a full-anthropological immersion into an indigenous buluo - you'll find a lot of difference - that difference is the beauty - but there will still be an arrangement of celebrated values & meaningful participation in both those communities that connects with its members. Culture is that connective stuff.

That's all great, but it led to thinking about Culture as a stand-alone Thing. It results in a pattern - a spectrum - a primary wave/particle influence - that all us humans experience. It's powerful as fuck ... So what is it - when it's stripped back to its core?

By the time i got through - well i didn’t get through - but four weeks later i realized i had 4-5 pages about Culture - which is fascinating - but it’s a different book, mate - we’re doing this one - on MSC's influence on NT indigenous people - we need one page max - otherwise it will block the flow of the story. Park it.

But …

Put it in bullet points if you have to - one page or less - on my desk by tomorrow)
