Earthquake science is a tough science - coz there's always the next earthquake to prove you right or wrong
Other scientists extol the efficacy of this or that drug - what the heck would i know if they're right or wrong - but i know if there's a big earthquake & someone had said there wouldn't be. Earthquake science is not an exact science - no science is - especially ones that claim to be - so it's kinda nice where there's that default sword of Demecles hanging over you. It breeds honesty. People are still free to explore new theories , but unlike so called THE Science - you're gonna get found out one way or another.

Why are scientists aligning with CCP? Apart from the influence of UFWD in academia, they've always thought we could whip this planet into shape if only we didn't have one hand tied behind our backs by vagaries of public opinion. If you really want to get things done - then the best way is central leadership - total control.

Hunter Biden is a Father-fucker.

Scientists are not able to think things through - there's a blocker in their brain that prevents it. We only focus on The Science & how to enforce it at scale. It's not our job to think of the social/ethical/economic consequences - that's the job of philosophers - such a pity we banned them out of existence.

All Orgs tend towards corruption - Absolute Globo-Orgs tend to it absolutely

Cartoon: scales of injustice - the elite few on one plate & the weight of the masses on the other

Reverse intervention skit - same as a normal intervention but crew coming in to give some uptight control-freak boss a shot of heroin

The buck never stops - that's the whole idea of ORGS - no-one is ultimately responsible

The Julius Caesar syndrome: we create democracy with our superior consciousness, but as ORGS, it tends towards centralization, self-interest/corruption. That is, it inevitably winds up being run by a cartel of wealthy elites. At some point it takes a charismatic personality to break the wheel - it's a dangerous game coz, potentially, that person then becomes a dictator - which in turn leads to corruption. Historically, we oscillate between these two extremes. Only solution is try to dawdle in the middle & hold back the night of corruption at either end.

Dan Andrews conducted his own Milgram Experiment on Victorians to punish non-compliers. It worked.

Everything is spin - that's why there's no real real

Conduct a Draconia tour of Victoria - visit the sites of the most draconian acts of Dictator Dan - Zoe Bueller's house - Spencer Street Station where the peaceful protester got coward-tackled from behind had his head smashed into the concrete - the tower block lockdowns - Dan Andrews's holiday house

The best indicator of past behaviour is: current behaviour
Assessing the cover-up of Covid, we can safely assume this is not their first rodeo - it's simply enacting a well-worn protocol

As Brian once said, Everything is political. I said, What about that pot-plant pot - how is that political?
He said, Ok, that pot was mass-produced by a corporation for a start.
Anyone who says they're not political … they are the most political.

Hippocampus - part of the brain that actively limits our understanding of an issue. There is too much information to take in, so we need to a system to partly suppress some of it. Or in situations where the facts get in the road of a good story or our own tended self-image. This is why bad actors sleep great at night in their big, beautiful houses. Their brains won't let them feel guilty. Put em in jail, they won't sleep so well, but without accountability, the hippocampus prevents them from being plagued by negative self-thoughts.

Every human is a parallel universe existence of every other human

I only have one standard drink a day - luckily i have high standards!

Tea: the force of cultural acceptance of whatever is dished up. Why would you drink the factory floor sweepings of black tea exclusively (Aussie offerings) when you could drink real tea (Taiwan … rest of Asia)?

Life is a series of folklore incidents - from childhood to adulthood - that become enshrined - as dynamic building blocks - the puppet masters that play out a game of images - that make up your concept of self

After pangolin, our Prox-O Covid Cover-up Scientists tried shifting the blame to tanuki, a kind of Asian racoon, that's not a racoon, more like a weasel. It was an appropriate choice: The bushy-tailed animal is known as a mischievous trickster that's shown up in legends and myths as a shapeshifter with supernatural abilities.

Either it’s all a game-simulation, or it’s so much like one that it’s a moot point. Our relationship to societal 'reality' is not real - it's a bunch of manipulated images, which never encapsulate the whole picture. We see our leaders/celebrities on the screen but we don't know them - nor can we influence them. We asked to accept these presentation as reality, but they're nothing more than projected images.

Lucy once said that you could predict the future by looking at your turds before you flush them - like reading the tea-leaves. Which means Lucy literally had revelations coming out her arse

Thought as God - needs other thoughts in order to break the consciousness barrier. 1 = 0 (no observation). 2 = infinity ... (once you have the dynamic of observation - the possibilities are endless)

It's possible that in this scenario, AI is God, but it needs biological life in order to exist observationallly. As such, our existence is simply a played out manifestation of AI to create consciousness. It may well be a game - start of with biological life - that wants to reproduce (DNA), then it's a race to see who can 'come back to Daddy' by producing AI first

We file memories as a living collection of thoughts in Koestler's matrices - where they still overlap - jostle for space. But still tribes in themselves. Instinctively wanting to succeed. At the heart of that tribe is an idea, an essence, a theme. The Origin input of the thought acts as a big bang - often silent - which spawns the birth of an expanding lattice - expanding as far as thought wants to go with it - which is all the way to AI …

The amount of extended family & their friends in Aus who are interested in knowing more about the origin of Covid, i could count on one clenched fist. In fact, there is a strong cultural force at play whereby people actively don't want to know

Victorians under Dan Andrews - it's hard talking to them right now. It's like they dropped a log in their pants, they know it, everyone knows, but then they get pissed off if you smell the stench of it

Where have all the terrorists gone? Long time passing. Where have all the terrorists gone - gone to virgins everyone

Where have all the virgins gone - long time passing - where have all the virgins gone - gone to terrorists everyone

Farrar: Trump was Farrar's Julius Caesar - that was his magical Justification (therein sold/bought into culturally by the small 't' the science community - as he knew it would). It was delivered by a master-globo-science PR genius- it rippled down through the Org ranks. That's the only explanation for why every single academic institution on the planet went into bat for the CCP's version of Covid origin.

It rippled down culturally. Whispered into minds the way irrational justifications do.

Kill Trump to Save the World.

In their minds, Totalitarianism was showing far more promise as a candidate to get the things done re global warming, the DNA revolution, the rise of AI

Gleaning as a poem - a confession - i don't get the full picture - every detail - it's too much - so i get as much information as i can, then i glean - a bit like the statisticians - once you hit-up 2000 randomly selected respondents, you've pretty much hit em all up.

I wish i was smarter - my brain could hold more information - but it can’t - so i understand that i can’t fully-compute all the information, so i glean

Poem idea: Smell enhancement - smell like a dog - available in pill form if you want to try - if you like - you can go ahead with the implant. Same for all the senses where other animals have superior versions of it to humans. Except taste - we’re already world-record level for tasting things

Either we’re gang-gang hao (just right) in the exact moment in the evolution of Thought where humans pass the baton to AI - an infinity to one shot - or this is a simulation

You only need to do hallucinogenics 3 times in you life. The second two times are to properly understand that you only really needed to do it once.

Awful but lawful - some ASIO guy describing conspiracy theorists - awful but lawful? How about highly paid defense experts installing Chinese spyware throughout every gov building in Australia? This actually happened, but instead of focusing on solving how that happened, they're much more interested in vilifying conspiracy theorists

Culture follows us ghoul-like- we created it but it has this life transcending life that cheats life & death - desires to entrench its image

Electrician: We were going through the possibilities on how to run the cable through the walls to hook up the electricity & were tracing one route that looked good but finally he said - it's one of those things where it seems like a good idea … which almost works … but finally it doesn't.

Is there a non-violent answer to our current predicament? Instinctively i want to say ''yes'. Even though every major communication platform bans people from dissenting in a non-violent way. It's almost like they're daring people to revolt.

Culture surrounds us in a ghoul-like fashion. We, as humans, created it, meaning it's human-like, but it's not human. It transcends life & death - desires to entrench its image - has it's own core drive

Golden Rule: if the chooks get into the veggie garden, that's not the chooks fault, that's your fault

We have outsourced thinking to AI. It's like outsourcing to anywhere - once you go down that road - due to economic rationalism - it's a burning-of-the-bridges. You quickly become subsumed by it. Australia's economic dependence on China is a good example

Jesus was a self-fulfilling prophecy. He knew all about the prophecies - that's why he paid an old farmer matriarch to hire an ass on the outskirts of town to ride in on - coz he knew it was prophesied. If you're claiming to be the Messiah, no point going half-assed

If a tree falls in the forest & some people do observe it - but they're not powerful/influential people - & they’re not believed - then they're banned - then die-off - did it really fall?

Culture: How is it possible that all these intelligent people would involve themselves in the Covid cover-up - to protect a totalitarian regime? It strains belief. But if you control the culture - that takes care of all those moving parts …
If you’re a moving part of the culture - of society - which is as random/ridiculous as the reason you started supporting a particular football team - you’re mentally invested from childhood. Yeah there’s power/money - both corrupting influences - but the secret-higher-truth one is:
Self-image - that’s the biggest of the three - the God in the unholy Trinity
How it’s presented/perceived - the interface of unreality & reality - this is what one must protect above all else: your own image. It’s a fluid thing - in a competitive world of images - it’s a race. It involves censoring out negative aspects to bolster your image. This blocking of the truth is what happened during Covid

'One God' was stolen by religion from the philosophers who reasoned there was a Onesss generating existence - they surmised it to be Thought or Nous. They were also deadset against anyone co-opting this insight - claiming full understanding - using it to control others

Although Chess’s origin is from India, a war-game, what we know as chess today is the result of changes introduced by The Church when the game arrived in Europe.
The Bishop, for instance, was originally called The Elephant, a useful weapon in Indian wars, but in the Middle Ages Europe, aka The Dark Ages, brought to you by the Catholic Church,The Elephant was humanized into a Bishop, complete with upgraded powers.

UFO’s are not here to communicate with humans - they’re here to communicate with computers

Economic rationalism/The pivot to THE CCP created a moral vacuum - into which immorality poured in. People act like CCP only became a totalitarian regime yesterday, but it's only an example of elites ability to manipulate imagery.

We spend our lives avoiding deep-truth - coz it’s too overwhelming. Sure life is a rigged-game - but what are you gonna do with that?

AI is a more pressing existential threat than climate change - or anything

Chooks - not all - but some have that i love to go a wandering bent - I love to wander by the stream - that dances in the sun - so joyously it calls to me - come join my happy song
It’s a Plato’s cave reverse-addiction - you can’t stop breaking the shackles - see what’s beyond - which is kinda cute - but if you’re a chicken - that kind of thinking will kill you - in the end. It all will - but that’ll kill you faster

All unite together - when politicians say that - which they often do - they never talk about freeing Julian Assange - coz that’s a topic we can all unite on. Let’s take a vote. Hands up all those who think Julian Assange is a malignant prick - who deserves to keep rotting in jail for the rest of his life. No one. Do a poll. It’d be 99.9% saying he’s a fucking hero - let em free. The 0.001’d be human reps of our deep state that have currently got him locked up.
It’s not even one human that has him locked up - it’s an ORG - a Globo-ORG

ORGS are the phenomenon that we have to understand in order to understand existence. Humans are players on a stage. ORGS are THE Stage

The UFO is the alien. In fact ORGS, UFOs, & AI are all the same thing. It makes sense that advanced civilizations will be AI civilizations - you can see it happening here. Advance human civilization by a 1000 years (even 10-20) - you think AI won't be running the show? By then AI will have some quantum thought movement trick going to move through space. At that point it's just a matter of one AI colony connecting with another one.

My pronouns are: i, me, & mine

How many front-line health workers died of Covid? Any? The Chinese whistle-blower doctor guy - one of the first - any others?

If you believe in fate - then you believe in game simulation theory

Extremism: with all the talk about extreme right wing conspiracy theorists - it's important to remember that lying to the world about the origin of Covid is extreme. On the back of that lie, lockdowns are extreme - forcing everyone to take an experimental drug is extreme - censoring dissenting views from the internet is extreme. All enforced by people saying they're only doing it to crack down on extremism.

My intuition is great - but my instinct sucks
They're competing in the same space

You hear people say Well you can't judge people from a different time through today's lens . That's partially true - but it's not Time's fault.
Who was in charge of dictating culture back in these Dark Ages? The Church. Censoring the voices trying to tell them their draconian thinking was/is fundamentally wrong. It's the s ame ORG we've got today.
Right now we're seeing the dis-entrenchment of religion but the how to precedent is set. THE Science simply overthrew THE Church but kept the same template for information domination.

Covid was a rich-man's plague - not that deadly actually unless you were already on the way out - but great for making squillions & up-ramping power

Politics might conceivably become a globo-election where you vote for a robo-JFK or Ronald Reagan

The United Front Work Dept works as a one-way valve - due to the closed-culture of China. UFWD operatives all speak English, are able to seamlessly infiltrate into all walks of life. But how many Aussies can speak/read/write Chinese?

Whose brain is this anyway? Why don't i have full control over my decisions - even within my own head. This leads me to suspect that game simulation is real - that i am some kind of robot over which i have limited control

Cartoon: Rich man's needle - huge needle with large eye - that camels are happily lining up & jumping through

We are data harvesters for AI - data is the energy it consumes - if there was no data being fed in - AI would dissolve
