

The accusation

The accusations are staggering:

Celebrity scientist-actors conspired to cause &/or cover up a lab-exit resulting in the deaths of millions - the evaporation of basic freedoms.

If they were ever were charged, then convicted, according to the rule of law, some would be facing the death penalty, depending on where they were tried. Except for the first one to grab immunity, the rest would be jailed without parole. Their reputations, of course, destroyed.

So if you're going to make accusations - you better not do it lightly. I take that shit seriously - there's too much at stake - I am aware of the consequences for those involved. I ask similarly:

Are those wanting to sweep it under the carpet - move on - are they aware of the grave consequences of doing that?

Anyway, this is an auditing of what we've got - to see how it stacks-up - as well as an attempt to understand events from the perspective of the actors - what on earth could possibly drive them to:

concoct a massive web of lies - thereby betraying the core principles of science?
